I have completed the CCNA certification, which provided me with a solid understanding of networking fundamentals, TCP/IP, routing and switching concepts, firewalls, ports, and basic network troubleshooting. I have also completed a 2-week internship in Web Design at iLife Technologies, where I gained exposure to web technologies and developed an understanding of secure and structured application development.

As part of my academic learning and self-practice, I have worked on cybersecurity-related projects and tools, including:

- Network Traffic Capture and Analysis using Wireshark in Kali Linux
- Log analysis and monitoring using Splunk
- Development of a security-focused project (CyberSentinel) involving file monitoring, encryption, authentication mechanisms, and basic network monitoring concepts

In addition, I actively practice ethical hacking fundamentals through TryHackMe labs and CTF-style challenges, which have helped me understand common attack techniques, basic vulnerabilities, and introductory incident detection concepts.

I am continuously learning about SOC operations, alert monitoring, incident analysis fundamentals, network security concepts, and security tools. I am self-motivated, disciplined, and willing to learn from experienced professionals while contributing sincerely to the team.
